

ABSTRACT

At least one predominant color in a digital image is identified by applying a detection rule to randomly-selected pixels in the image.